Friday Morning ....Oct. 30, 1857.

A Defaulter for County Justice.

On several occasions the Times has gone out of its way to puff Owen McCarthy, late City Collector. When he went out of office last spring it was loud in its laudations of him. It claimed that the city was in debt to him, that he had paid over more money to the treasury than he owed it,—and more to the same effect.

Now, it turns out that he is a defaulter or embezzler, or what is the same thing, that he collected taxes from citizens, kept the money and returned them as delinquents! So we are informed upon responsible authority.

We are told that he returned Julian S. Rumsey as a delinquent. Mr. Rumsey has a receipt showing that he paid his taxes. He also returned S. D. Ward, the Comptroller, C. B. [illegible], Geo. Anderson, Luther Haven, all as delinquents; every one of them had paid. How many others returned as delinquents have paid, can only be ascertained when the present collector calls upon them. McCarthy returned assessments to the amount of over $7,[illegible] as unpaid, when the probability is, from what is now known, that most of this money he collected last winter, and has appropriated to his own use.

This is the nice office holder from Sweet [illegible], whom the Times "cracks up" as a model for all officials to square their conduct by. He is now running on the Times' "Independent Ticket" for the important office of County Justice, and is also the nominee of the [illegible] for the same office.

Oh yes, let him be elected by all means (!) Why should the good people of Cook Co. be deprived of the eminent and faithful services of the O'Malley and Prendergast school of functionaries? Give us another Corkonian, even though a defaulter, to administer our laws. Is he not a Democrat and an Irishman? What other qualification does any man ask?

Where the Hose Was.

On the morning of the Great Fire, two of the hose—Nos. 6 and 10—were out of order and did not work at the fire. The Companies, we are informed, broke them at the County Fair, while competing for the silver trumpet, and they were not repaired in time to be of service at that fire. A hose-cart took 500 feet of hose to the Fair Ground, for the use of the racing engines, and left it there. On the morning of the fire, the Chief Engineer sent an express wagon for it to the Fair Ground. It came too late to be of any essential service. [illegible] at the Fair Ground, [illegible] was burst, and rendered useless for immediate service.

BRAYMAN SENTENCED.

AFFIDAVITS IN MITTIGATION

The Statement of Counsel.

JUDGE DRUMMOND'S ADDRESS.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

Yesterday afternoon, in the U. S. Dist. Court, the sentence of the law was passed upon James O. Brayman, who had plead guilty to stealing letters from the Chicago Post Office.

At 4 o'clock the prisoner was brought into Court by Marshal Davidson. He did not appear dejected, but smilingly shook hands with his counsel, Messrs. Dickey and Hoyne, and sat down between them.

Judge Drummond announced that he was now prepared to dispose of the case.

Mr. Hoyne stated that on account of the peculiarity of the case, the past high standing and good character of the prisoner and the sorrow which had been brought upon his many friends, the counsel felt it to be their duty to present affidavits and read a statement in mittigation of the offense alleged in the indictment. Mr. Hoyne then read the following affidavits:

Chicago, Oct. 24, 1857.

My acquaintance with Mr. James O. Brayman commenced in February, 1856, almost immediately after my arrival in Chicago. From that time we have been on terms both friendly and intimate.—From May 1, 1856, we boarded in the same family about five months. In his habits he was an example of economy, and every meek and Christian virtue. Such was my confidence in his honesty and integrity, that in January last I made him one of my assignees, giving him the custody of funds belonging to the trust, as well as a large amount collected by me for other parties. From Jan. 19th to July 27th, various amounts accruing as above, were deposited to his credit in the Marine Bank and Exchange Bank in this city, amounting in all to more than eleven thousand eight hundred dollars ($11,800). Such was my confidence in him that I took no receipt for any of the money, leaving him at perfect liberty to appropriate it as he chose.

At the time of his arrest, there were balances remaining in the above banks, amounting to nearly four thousand dollars ($4,000). An examination of his bank books and comparison with my own accounts and Memoranda, show that to a penny he has been faithful to the trust reposed in him. Every dollar was on hand, or properly appropriated. In all my dealings and associations with him, I have seen nothing to impair my confidence in him as an honorable man and a Christian gentleman. Keeping his expenses [illegible] within his income, he [illegible] no wants or habits which could tempt him to use any dishonest or dishonorable means for the attainment of money. Such, after the most intimate relations, has ever been my opinion of Mr. Brayman.

Chicago, October 24th, 1857.

I have been acquainted with Mr. James O. Brayman about three years and a half; during nine months of the time we boarded at the same place. I then knew him intimately, and have since been connected with him in various relations. We have been specially associated in the management of the Baptist State Missions for Illinois. For the last year he has held the office of Treasurer of the Society conducting those missions, while my own has been that of Secretary. During the year, an amount of some four thousand dollars ($4,000) has in one way or another passed through his hands. I have had the means of knowing accurately what sums were entrusted to him as Treasurer, and what disposition was made of them. Since his arrest I have had the accounts in my possession. It has been necessary for me, in preparing them to be presented to the Society, to review them thoroughly, comparing them with my own. I find that the money paid to him as Treasurer, has all been appropriated properly, and his accounts correctly and truly kept. In this relation, and in others, where I have been aware of his manner of keeping and using trust funds, he has acted as a man of perfect integrity. There has been nothing whatever in his management of these or other interests similarly committed to his care, to suggest the possibility of a criminal act such as is now charged against him. My estimate of Mr. Brayman has always been that he was an example of Christian integrity and manly honor.

State of Illinois, Cook County, ss:—

Charles L. Reed being by me duly sworn, deposes and saith, that he is well acquainted with James O. Brayman, and has been acquainted with him during the three and a half years last past, and during three years of which time this deponent has been employed in the Chicago Democrat office, in which office he has succeeded to the place of the late D. M. Bradley, as managing and business editor of said paper, and as such has ever conducted himself as a man of temperate, honest and exemplary habits, and was so esteemed by all who knew him; and that he lived during all that time in the enjoyment of a most enviable reputation for truth, honesty and correct deportment; and that at the time of his arrest upon the charge for which he is now held, to wit: on the 21st day of August last, there was due to him a balance of salary on the books of said concern, by the proprietor, the sum of two hundred and twenty-eight 90-100 dollars, which hath since been paid to him as his just due, and further saith not.

Chicago, Oct. 24, 1857.

My late husband, Mr. D. M. Bradley, was for many years the financial manager in the office of the Democrat in this city. He had charge of the books, received and paid out all the moneys of the office. He held this position during all the time Mr. James O. Brayman was connected with the paper as one of the editors. Mr. Bradley had the most implicit confidence in Mr. Brayman in every respect. He loved him as a true friend and Christian brother, though of a different faith. When Mr. Brayman was arrested for crime, Mr. Bradley was in deep distress on his account. He told me that Mr. Brayman had enjoyed the largest liberty in the office, and had he been disposed, might have purloined continually without being suspected; but that in no particular had he been guilty of betraying the confidence reposed in him.

During Mr. Bradley's short, but fatal illness, he inquired of friends at his bedside: "What had been done in Mr. Brayman's case?" When no one could give him any intelligence, he seemed much disappointed. With deep feeling he said, "Mr. Brayman is not guilty! He is not a dishonest man!" This was the dying testimony of one who for years had known Mr. Brayman, and warmly loved him.

[Signed.] Mrs. Eliza A. Bradley.

Mr. Hoyne then read the following paper:

To the Hon. Thomas Drummond, presiding in the U. S. District Court—In the case of J. O. Brayman:

The counsel for the defendant, after the most patient and careful investigation of his case, have advised that he plead guilty to the first and second counts of the indictment, which in substance charge the larceny from the newspaper box of McNally & Co., at the Post Office in the city of Chicago, on the first day of August last, of three mailed letters, one of which contained a draft for the payment of the sum of twenty-nine ($29) dollars, which were found in his possession at the time of his arrest.

The fact of the taking was not at any time denied, but was admitted by the defendant, with explanations tending to show that it was not done with a criminal intent. His statements, as well as those of the officers concerned in his arrest, have been published in the newspapers of the city and country. It need not be inquired what impressions these conflicting statements have left upon the public mind, nor to what extent they would be affected by sworn testimony, were the matter to proceed to a judicial investigation. It is sufficient to say, that the admitted plea stands in the place of a conviction, upon adequate testimony, that the defendant, unable to sustain his explanations by competent proof, admits the weight of the case to be against him, and stands ready to abide the judgment of the court, in whatever the law of the land requires. Whether true or not true, the many and apparently [illegible] accounts of this transaction which have sought public attention, pass for nothing here, where the demands of justice and the rights of the citizen are adjusted according to the law and the testimony. Under ordinary circumstances, the defendant's counsel having discharged their professional trust, might fitly retire, praying that the judgment of the Court, while satisfying the stern demands of the law, might fall in mercy; but in this case, they impressively feel that their watchcare is not ended, nor their duty complete, until the Court shall be advised of considerations which it is respectfully submitted ought to be taken into account in awarding the sentence which is to be pronounced.

The criminal law of the land, proceeding in admirable harmony with that which we reverently receive as Divine, seeks in its judgments to ascertain, not only that actual crime is committed, but to find out the moving cause, the prevailing motive, the actual "thought and intent of the heart." The most enlightened tribunals, where justice is most sure to prevail, find in their ministrations daily necessity for discarding set phrases and iron rules, and of seeking in the ever-varying circumstances that surround each act, its two moral qualities, as a means of fixing its character in the scale of criminality, and consequently of punishment. The act of killing, which in one case is murder, punishable with death, is in another excusable; in another justifiable; and in yet another, a patriotic duty. The motive determined the character of the act. The same comprehensive rule prevails in respect to the acts of lunatics, distracted persons, or those of unsound, feeble or disordered minds. The courts take account of those strange providences, through which the human intellect is so often disordered; knowing full well that its operations, so multifarious and changing, are liable to be disturbed in a thousand unseen ways. Mysterious in its workings and equally unaccountable in its outward manifestations, courts pause long and examine well, to find the broken cord that has spoiled its harmony, before striking the avenging blow.

In these, as in all cases, the courts inquire, first, if the act charged be done; and then, why was it done—with what intent?

The counsel in this case, without forethought, or purpose, found themselves at an early period of its investigation drawn into inquiries of this kind. Here is an offence committed in the entire absence of motive, wanting in all the ordinary inducements which impel men to the commission of crime. The prospect of gain which unbounded success would afford, was too contemptible to constitute a temptation, while detection was inevitable, and the penalty most severe. The accused, as the Court may know, had for many years occupied a prominent and honorable position among us. His ability as a writer for the public press, had given him a high rank in his profession. He is in the maturity of life, when the judgment is naturally strongest; when ripe experience has already taught the folly of crime, and the value of a good name. Until his arrest upon this charge, his religious and moral character was such as to command the entire respect and confidence of this community. In all his business relations, and in the fulfillment of responsible trusts, his integrity and faithfulness were proverbial. His income, though not large, was more than enough to cover his frugal expenses. He always had money on hand, [illegible] [illegible] never [illegible] in his [illegible] rily in want of money—for no man had, during the few years of his residence here, more completely won the confidence of those around him. But he had no wants of the kind. Had they existed, and the desire to gratify them unlawfully arisen in his mind, abundant means lay within his reach, without resorting to the dangerous and profitless expedient indicated in the indictment.

For some months previous to this arrest, he had been in possession and control of large amounts of money belonging to various parties, receiving and disbursing it. It will appear by one of the affidavits, that one party had placed in his hands for safe keeping some eleven thousand eight hundred dollars ($11,800) since the middle of January last, without security of any kind, or even taking receipts. Such was the confidence which intimate personal and business relations had inspired. At the time of his arrest, there was in his hands, and subject to his instant control, about four thousand dollars, which has since been correctly accounted for and paid over.—Had the defendant been actuated by sudden want, or a criminal desire to appropriate the property of others to his use, how much easier and more safe the process of using money already in his hands, involving only a breach of trust, instead of resorting to unguarded, reckless felony, in a public place, for the miserable mere chance of finding here and there a few dollars, among a news-mongers' remittances.

It appears by another statement presented, that the accused had for four years and down to the moment of his arrest, the keys to the news and letter drawer of the Daily Democrat, and thus had access to the letters of the office, affording constant opportunity for depredating upon its remittances, without limit. Instead of which, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of letters annually passed safely through his hands. Such was his daily conduct, that those who knew him best refused to believe this charge to the last, and we find Mr. Bradley, who having charge of the finances of the establishment was most competent to judge, and who died soon after the arrest, declaring during the last hours of his life, his conviction that the accused was an innocent man; that such a thing was impossible. Wherever we turn, we find similar expressions. In searching for facts to guide them in his defence, his counsel have been met at every point of inquiry, on the part of the most discriminating men, best acquainted with him and his manner of life, by the most determined unbelief that such a man could do such an act. And his counsel, after admitting, as they do, by the plea, the affirmative fact, are forced to take refuge in the conclusion which so many have reached that it was done without rational object, without necessity, without motive or inducement consistent with any known theory of intentional or meditated crime.—It is not such an act, nor done in such a way as indicated the settled purpose of a "disposing mind." The practised thief is governed by ascertainable motions, having origin in his vicious education, his evil associations, his wasteful habits and dread of honest labor. His mind is trained to the prevailing idea; his heart is in it, and he proceeds with caution and cunning or with overbearing violence to the accomplishment of his desires. For his conduct we can find a reason, for it is consistent with his governed character and chosen habits of life. For this transaction, however, we find no such motive. Utterly without necessity either for good or bad ends, out of time, out of place and character, committed in a manner and under circumstances showing want of caution and sense unpardonable in a child of the meanest intellect, it seems to belong to that class of cases in which the human mind is thrown from its balance by influences too subtle and mysterious for comprehension, and lost, for a time, in an aberation of its powers, not amounting to insanity, but so like it, as to leave little room for the medical jurist to decide where moral and legal accountability ought to end or acknowledged disorder of the intellect begins.

Pressed by considerations of this character, too often urged upon the attention to be neglected, and convinced by their own experience that this act proceeded not so much from wickedness of heart and criminal design, as from a temporary obscuration or darkening of the moral powers, his counsel considered long whether their duty did not require them to interpose a plea, and make his defence as indicated by these suggestions. But considering the general character of such defences; how often they are improperly interposed when all others fail; the well-earned distrust that attends them, and the wide door thus opened for escape from the consequences of actual guilt, his counsel were compelled to dismiss the hope of maintaining that one mental idiosyncracy, however painfully marked in a single act, could so obscure and control all the other strong attributes of a man's mind, as to extinguish the moral sense, and place him in the condition of one incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong.

Under this view of their duty to their client, and with his concurrence, the case is presented to the court, upon the admission, in legal form, of the particular fact charged, only referring to the strange peculiarities attending it as a means of satisfying the Court, and perhaps the community at large, in which the transaction has awakened so much astonishment and solicitude, that he is not that bad man that the usual character of the offence would make him appear, but rather the victim of a delusion, which, for a time, may over-master the strongest mind.

The offence is wholly inconsistent with his general character, in every other respect. While living frugally and laboring industriously, denying himself most rigidly, we find him giving freely to objects of benevolence, and bestowing much of his time in promoting enterprises of a religious and benevolent character. In the denomination to which he belonged, he was universally esteemed, and held offices requiring purity of character and undoubted integrity. Among those thus associated with him, very few are to be found, who, even now, would hesitate to confide the most important interests to his keeping, so well assured are they, that the thing for which he awaits the penalty of the law is but an excrescence, and no part of his real character.

The counsel for the defendant have deemed it due to him, as well as themselves, to present the foregoing considerations to the Court. Something is also due to the friends who still, and will to the end, continue to confide in his integrity of heart, and honesty of purpose despite the circumstances which now surround him.

It is due to those who have been associated with him in business, and in the more sacred relations of domestic and social life, that this digression from the true path should not be set down to the account of a depraved and deliberate transgression of law.

T. L. Dickey,
Thos. Hoyne,
Counsel for the Prisoner.

Chicago, Oct. 28, 1857.

The prisoner was directed to stand up, and Judge Drummond pronounced the following

SENTENCE:

James O. Brayman, you have been indicted for stealing letters out of the Chicago Post Office, some of which contained articles of value. You have had every opportunity to prepare for your defence. You have had the advice and assistance of eminent counsel. After full consideration on their part and on yours, a plea of guilty has been placed upon the record. It now becomes the duty of the Court to pass the sentence of the law for the commission of the offences with which you stand charged, and of which you are convicted upon your own confession. Your case is certainly a remarkable one: you were in this community a highly respectable citizen, in the judgment of those who knew you, as unlikely to commit this offense as any man to be found in it, no matter who he may be. You do not seem to have had any overpowering necessity upon you to tempt you to the crime. It appears difficult to comprehend that such a man should commit such an offence; that for the possible or even probable values in a few letters, a person occupying a respectable position in society should incur the risk—the certainty, it may be almost said—of an ignominious punishment. But crime is now and then presented to us in new and startling phases. Our criminal Jurisprudence has occasionally added to its history, some new offense, or an old one in some unexpected form, to surprise us. Courts of Justice can only deal with acts and judge of the motives of the man from those acts. You stand before this court like any other criminal convicted at its Bar. The only difference between your case and that of an ordinary offender is, you have fallen from a more respectable position in life. That circumstance certainly does not mitigate the offence. The court will not dwell upon your present condition. You must yourself at length fully appreciate it. The man of education and intelligence who deliberately commits a crime knows as well as any one can tell him what may be the terrible consequences. He thinks of them and dares them. If they fall on his own head, his fate stands as a warning to others.

The Court has fully weighed all the considerations which have now been presented on your behalf. The punishment which the law imposes for your offence is imprisonment not less than two nor more than ten years. The time within these limits is to be determined by the Court.

The sentence of the Court is that you be confined in the penitentiary, at Alton, at hard labor; for the term of four years from this date.

During the pronouncing of the sentence, as well as throughout the whole proceedings, the prisoner appeared calm, collected, and perfectly self-possessed. There were some fifty persons present, many of them the associates and intimate friends of the prisoner, and after the adjournment of the Court most of them came forward and bade him farewell. The scene was deeply impressive and solemn. Thus has ended a case which has, in all its phases, attracted a large share of the attention of the community by reason of the high standing of the prisoner, and the seemingly utter want of motive to commit the crime.

Robbery of Gold.—Philip Frank, a runner for the Galena House, was brought before the Police Court yesterday afternoon upon a charge of stealing $600 in gold from John Hubert. It appears that Hubert came in from the country and met Frank at the depot, who induced him to get into the Galena House omnibus, under pretence that it would take him to the City Hotel, where he wished to go. After some coaxing, Hubert agreed to stop at the Galena House, and Frank induced him to drink a glass of liquor, which proved to have been drugged, and he went to sleep upon a table. Hubert did not wake until daylight, when he found his money was gone. The money was in a belt around his waist. Frank was fully committed for trial.

Swindlers About—Look Out!—A fellow named James A. Loyd was brought before the Police Court yesterday for fraudulently obtaining small subscriptions from citizens, under pretence that the money was for the benefit of Hope Hose Co. and Engine Co. No. 1. Mr. [illegible], foreman of No. 1, and Mr. James, foreman of Hope Hose, had ascertained what was going on, and started with officer Warren in search of the swindler. They succeeded in finding him during the forenoon, and took him into custody. Upon his person was found $[illegible] in money, a bundle of cigars, and the following subscription, purporting to be for the benefit of Hope Hose:

[illegible] Bros., American Express Company, Tru[illegible] & Thayer, Thomas Ross, —— Garland, Peter Kirwin, N. Kasson, S. Blumthal, and Tappan Bros., $[illegible] each; John S. McClain and E. Hempstead, $10 each; Page & Co., Grubb & Gilbert, S. Shipp, A. C. Garfield and Bing & Co. $2 each; A. & H. B. Bogue, D. Harrison & Co. and C. H. [illegible] & Co., $1 each; "Cash" $4; total $72.

From the testimony of a portion of those who had been swindled, it appears that Loyd represented himself to be a member of Hope Hose, and that the money was for building money that the Hose Carriage was broken at the great fire and the greater portion of the hose destroyed, and that the Company needed the money for making repairs. Several members of the Hose Company testified that Loyd was not a member of the Company and never had been, and also, that the Company had authorized no such subscription nor received any portion of it.

The accused was fully committed for trial in default of $500 bail. He says he was formerly a member of Hope Hose Company in Philadelphia.

There are other swindlers about engaged in collecting money under the pretense of its being for the benefit of different fire Companies and it is supposed that Loyd has a "pal" who has secreted the greater portion of the money obtained by him. After Loyd had made his "collections" he purchased a new suite of clothes and went on a spree.

Our citizens should not give money upon applications of this kind unless they are personally acquainted with the applicant or know that he is a member of the Company for which he professes to act.

Cheap Books.—Sherlock, who has the book stall in the alley near the Tribune office, 51 Clark street, is selling out at prices. He has a fine stock of books, old and new, and his collection embraces many quaint and curious works. He has determined to close out the stock at any prices he can get, so give him a call.

Lost Children.—Two German girls, Therese and Eliza Briar, left their home, corner of Erie and Peyton streets, North Side, on Monday afternoon last, and have not since been seen. Any information concerning them will be thankfully received by their mother.

Republican Ward Committees.—The Executive Committees of the several wards are requested to meet at the Club Rooms, 128 Lake street, this evening, without fail.

Let every man be present. Per Order.

Drug Thief.—Andrew Smith was brought before the Police Court yesterday, upon a charge of stealing some vials and alum. He was committed for trial in default of $200 bail.

"The Great Fire."—After the excitement is over, the question is asked, "what safe came out with the contents unharmed?" "The Fire King (says D. B. Cooke, & Co.) kept our books and papers safe." Mr. Barnum says, "Herring's came out victorious; being somewhat interested, I called to see Herring's safe, at C. L. Harmon's, and found on the wheels 'Wilder's Patent,' and on inquiry I learned that Herring formerly made Wilder's safes under a license, for which he paid; but as Wilder made his own safes I concluded to go to Wilder's safe warehouse and buy a 'true salamander.'" It is wise to have a safe which will be sure to preserve your money and papers in times of danger. "A word to the wise is sufficient." oct30-1w

Information Wanted concerning the whereabouts of Joseph Morse. The said Joseph Morse left Western Vermont about twenty-eight years ago for some part of the West; is now about eighty-six years old, if living,—is thick set; medium height; left knee entirely stiff, so that in walking he keeps the leg straight. A Havana correspondent says Messrs. Balbif & Co., Bankers, have failed; liabilities $100,000. Messrs Romens & Co have also suspended.

The American brig Pierre Soule has landed a full cargo of negroes, and another ship had landed 600, both near Havana. Several more cargoes had arrived at Cardenas. It is stated as soon as the English Consul heard the arrival of those steamers, he went to see Gen. Concha and requested him to prosecute the traders which he did. The Consul then tried to oblige Concha to put the consignees in prison, failing in which he struck his flag and left the city for London. Orders were received to quarter all the soldiers forming the garrison of the island and have them ready to go to Mexico at a moment's warding.

Freshets.

Boston, Oct. 29.

Reports from the east mention heavy freshets with considerable damage on the Kennebec River. It had risen 8 feet. The Merrimac yesterday rose 5½ feet, and at Lowell was still rising, some of the mills were troubled with back water. Indications of fair weather last night were disappointed, and heavy rain occurred through the night, with no prospect of clearing up to-day.

Keeseville, N. Y., Oct. 19.

The heavy rains of Sunday and Monday have raised the Au Sable River 16 feet above low water mark. In this village the swing-bridge was destroyed. The bulkhead and flume gone from Taber's Grist mill, also from Kingland's Axletree Factory, sweeping off one trip hammer, water wheel, jack knife, and throwing down the river wall of the cabinet shop, &c.

The works of E. and J. D. Kingshead have escaped injury. Rogers & Co., Au Sable Forks, lose 75,000 bushels of coal. A part of the Aqueduct and bellows house, and Tyler and Potter's store, with a large stock of goods, was swept off by the flood. Their loss is 8,000 or 10,000 dollars. The Peru Iron Co. are but slightly damaged.

Hon. G. A. Simmons died at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Albany, October 28.

At 12 o'clock last night, the water rose to within 2 1-2 feet of the great February freshet. The water remained stationary some six hours, when it began to recede, and during the last twelve hours it has fallen 18 inches. The business portion of the city is yet submerged some two or three feet. No communication with vessels lying at docks except by boat, consequently no loading or discharging of cargoes can be effected. Large number of vessels are lying at lumber districts waiting for their cargoes, but they cannot be approached, as the entire district is under water. Canal boats can neither enter the basin nor depart westward. All manner of business carried on near the river or canal is entirely suspended, and merchants can only approach their stores by means of boats and entering in second stories.

On Lake Ontario several vessels have been foundered.

From Oswego we learn that several vessels were stranded near that point.

The Mohawk Flats, down to the junction of the Hudson, presents one field of water scarcely ever seen before.

Martial Law in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Oct. 29.

Governor Ligon issued a proclamation this morning, placing the city under martial law, and ordered out two divisions, some 700 men; and their commanding officers are ordered to enrol at once, and report for service, and hold themselves in readiness to preserve the peace on Wednesday next, the day of general election.

The Governor takes this step against the decision of the Mayor, but at the request and on representation made by by responsible citizens. Considerable feeling was aroused this morning by the proclamation.

There is a great diversity of opinion in regard to the measure, many considering it justified by the existing circumstances, while others look upon it as most unwise, and calculated to increase the difficulties apprehended on election day.

10 P. M. Report.

Gov. Ligon's proclamation has produced quite a sensation and much excitement, and an extra has been published, giving the correspondence between the Governor and Mayor. The latter objects to any interference by the Governor in the government of the city, and says, in conclusion:

"As the Mayor of the city of Baltimore, I hold my commission directly from the people, and am accountable to them for the manner in which I discharge my duty. The office which I am called upon to assume, was conferred upon me without solicitation, and will be laid down whenever it shall be made to appear that I have lost the confidence of those who it has been my endeavor to serve. I can recognize subordination to no other power within [illegible]

ORPHAN'S BENEFIT.

Tea Party and Oyster Supper.

IT IS WITH MUCH PLEASURE WE announce that the ladies are preparing to give a TEA PARTY AND OYSTER SUPPER for the benefit of the poor destitute Orphans. The motive which prompts these benevolent ladies (ever mindful of the destitute orphans) to undergo the necessary labor and toil attendant upon such an undertaking, is the prospect of this being a very severe winter, in consequence of the scarcity of money, high rate of provisions, fuel and clothing; and the orphans' funds being entirely exhausted, it will be almost impossible for "The Sisters" in charge of the destitute little ones of each Institution, Male and Female, and numbering 128, to procure for them the necessaries of life, unless aided by the generous sympathies of a kind and benevolent public, and to whom they have never appealed in vain. We feel confident that every philanthropist and charitably disposed person in and around the Garden City—Chicago—will lend a helping hand in their labor of love; and that the lovers of good cheer and social mirth, will make their annual visit to the Orphans' Benefit; and their names may be found among the missing from so praiseworthy an undertaking, except such as have gone to receive their crown, for their charitable tenderness and magnanimity of soul upon them and such like calls upon their benevolence, and who will be forever remembered in the orphans' prayers.

Donations in behalf of these destitute children will be gratefully received by their friends of the North, South and West Divisions of the city, by the Committee of Arrangements, at the Orphans' Asylums, or Sisters of Mercy, No. 131 Wabash avenue, or by the following ladies:

Mrs P Conley, Mrs C O'Connor, Mrs J Mcguire, Mrs M Lantry, Mrs Crowley, Mrs G m Doone, Mrs O Holloway, Mrs Kelly, Mrs Handenbergh, Mrs M Lynch, Mrs P McLaughlin, Mrs T Gammore, Mrs M Carley, Mrs J McMullin, Mrs Gilby, Mrs W McLaughlin, Mrs Moore, Mrs Cotrey, Mrs D Quirk, Mrs Cunningham, Miss Pursel, Mrs D Skally, Mrs P Reardon, Mrs Branagan

Persons wishing to contribute to the object will please do so at once, in order to enable the ladies to carry out their arrangements, which will be on a grand scale and worthy of the occasion. oc22-2t[illegible]

Minnesota Election.

The latest returns we have from the Minnesota election are found in the St. Paul papers of Monday, Oct. 26th.

The vote stands as follows, for Governor:

Ramsey, Rep.	[illegible]
Sibley, Dem.	[illegible]
Ramsey ahead	[illegible]

Pennsylvania.

The full official vote of Pennsylvania gives the following aggregate for Governor:

William F. Packer, (Dem.)	[illegible]
David Wilmot, (Repub.)	[illegible]
Isaac Hazlehurst, (American)	[illegible]

Packer over Wilmot, 36,732; over all, 9,452.

Not a great majority for Pennsylvania, considering the fuss made about it.

The new Legislature stands—

Senate—Buchanan, 21; Opposition, 12.

House—Buchanan, 69; Opposition, 31.

Buchanan's majority last fall was 83,200 over Fremont, which shows a Democratic loss of 46,468. The American vote last fall cast for Fillmore, was 82,175, which is 53,898 more than this year. Wilmot has received 2,635 more votes than Fremont obtained. Had the Republicans known their strength they might have elected Wilmot.

Republican Pyramid for 1857.

The Republicans have carried the following Northern States this fall. Look at it.

OHIO.
IOWA.
MAINE.
KANSAS.
INDIANA.
VERMONT.
MINNESOTA.
CONNECTICUT.
RHODE ISLAND.
NEW HAMPSHIRE.
AND ALMOST MISSOURI.

And next Tuesday they will add to the pyramid:

ILLINOIS.
NEW YORK.
WISCONSIN.
MASSACHUSETTS.

The Democrats have carried, by reduced majorities, the following States:

CALIFORNIA.
PENNSYLVANIA.

Not bad for the first year after a Presidential election.

Mr. John A. Thompson and the Cook County Republican Ticket.

We print in another column a communication from Mr. JOHN A. THOMPSON, mainly on the subject of his political differences with JOHN WENTWORTH. We do not apprehend that the private griefs of either of these persons will captivate the public heart during a period of financial distress like the present; nor is it likely, in our view, that the street warfare going on between these gentlemen will influence any considerable number of votes at the forthcoming election. We do not consider Mr. THOMPSON's document either an able essay on local politics, or a correct statement of facts in relation to the late Republican Convention; nor are we interested in the merits of his quarrel with WENTWORTH, either nearly or remotely. We give his communication a place in our columns because it is just and proper that Mr. THOMPSON should have an audience for such explanation of his course as he chooses to make. If this explanation squares him up with his political friends; annihilates Mr. WENTWORTH, or fails of accomplishing either of these ends, the credit of the performance will rest with Mr. THOMPSON exclusively.

But while our indifference to this controversy is stubborn enough to satisfy both the parties thereto, we have a word to say on one subject brought out by Mr. THOMPSON. It is this:—The Cook County Republican Convention was not pre-arranged by JOHN WENTWORTH. It was no more under his control than under the man-in-the-moon's. This, everybody knows who undertakes to know anything about it, and whoever circulates the nonsense which seems to be saddling Mr. THOMPSON, goes to a poor shop for balm to heal his political sores.

One word more; Mr. THOMPSON is in no more danger of being "read out" of the Republican party by Mr. WENTWORTH than Mr. WENTWORTH is of being read out by Mr. THOMPSON. The Republicans of this city and county have not elected a dictator, so far as ascertained. Any man can read himself out of the party, just as he can read himself out of respectable society. It is nobody's function to read Mr. THOMPSON or Mr. SMITH or Mr. JENKINS or Mr. PETTIBONE out of the Republican organization. They will occupy just the positions to which their behavior entitles them; and therefore no one need have apprehensions concerning his own particular status. As a general thing, that man will be considered a good Republican who supports the Republican ticket, and labors for its success. This is a very simple formula, and we hope to hear no more complaining about the silly threats which have stirred up the resentment of our friend Mr. THOMPSON.

Chinese Sugar Cane in Dupage County.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

[illegible], Dupage Co., Ill., Oct. 28, 1857.

As many of your readers are farmers, I send you the following particulars of my experience in the raising of Sorghum, and in obtaining molasses therefrom.

I procured, last spring, from Mr. Kreh, of Wabash Co., seed sufficient to plant one acre of ground, at the rate of four seeds per hill, but with the advice of that gentleman, to put only two seeds in each hill, and plant a larger plot of ground, as he supposed that the shoots springing from the main stalk would furnish good molasses. I followed his advice, and thus extended it over one and three-fourths acres, but owing to the peculiar formation of the surface, about one-third was entirely ruined by heavy rains. So that not more than one and one [illegible]

The Two Eras of Distress.

It is a somewhat remarkable fact that the aggregate of debts discharged by the operation of the Bankrupt Law which followed the grand explosion of 1837, was just about equal to the amount of the paper currency expansion which immediately preceded that notable event. In other words, it is evident, from the history of that time; that the paper money then issued was only a delusion and a snare—that excited hopes and created belief in wealth that proved to be only inordinate exaggerations of values, when the bubble burst; and that, all at once, the country found itself plunged into debt, hopelessly and ruinously, by the very agency that was supposed to be adding to its prosperity. Then, as now, it was the immense domestic indebtedness, due mainly to the expansion of the currency. That was the cause of distress. The foreign indebtedness of nearly all descriptions, was repudiated in fact if not in terms. But until the Bankrupt Law came, and men found means to throw off the liabilities that they had incurred for property that was inflated in price in proportion to the inflation of the currency, there was no relief. Here we are again in the same "fix." The business of the country is ruined. What manufacturing establishments were not closed last year by the high prices of food and labor, have either shut their doors or reduced their force. There is a general paralysis of industry and commerce. The indebtedness that we have piled up abroad remains unpaid, and there is everywhere, among all classes, a fearful struggle to avoid the bankruptcy which stares farmers and mechanics, as well as commercial men, full in the face. If we could hope to rise again when the evil effects of the late Bank expansion were overcome, all would soon go smoothly, because that expansion is not so great as at the former period, and it is on a broader basis of the solid metals. But there is a new element in the imbroglio, the effect of which no experience enables us to foresee. We refer to the obligations arising out of the unparalleled internal improvements which the country, within the last twenty years, has undertaken and carried on. The stocks and bonds of railroad companies, canal companies and steamship companies, have, to a certain extent, served the purposes of paper money. They have been the basis upon which loans and purchases have been made; and have added wonderfully, but to what extent no man can tell, to the inflation and exaggerated prices that have lately prevailed. We are, then, going through a process to which the country was subjected after the last great bubble, but with complications that make the end invisible to the sharpest financial eyes. When the end comes, and a Bankrupt Act wipes all out, and we are ready to begin anew, it will be found that, as in 1837, the unpaid obligations are equal to the exaggerations of the paper money system, with an enormous load of unproductive bonds and stocks, of all sorts and kinds, superadded.

It is a question now debated with earnestness, by many of our cotemporaries, "Is there no way to give stability to our paper currency, and keep its amount within the legitimate wants of the country?" It is asked by a thousand voices, because it is foreseen, that, without some reconstruction of our monetary system, we are doomed to go the same round that we have so often been before, and again bring up at the goal where we now are. The inquirers are mainly the friends of a paper currency; but they see that the experiences of the country therewith are so bitter that it will not be tolerated by the masses, upon whom its credit at least depends, without some thorough and comprehensive reform. It is agreed on all hands that the men who make paper money must be wise enough to guard the country against its evil effects, or they are not wise enough to issue it at all; and there is a call, loud and long, even from the journals heretofore considered to be oracles in finance, for them to bestir themselves now. But what they can do or will do is not so clear. One proposes a National Bank, which is probably not among the possibilities; another wants a great National Exchange, which shall serve the purposes of a Clearing House and a Regulator at the same time; another wants laws compelling banks to keep a larger specie reserve—equal at all times to a third of its liabilities, deposits and all; a fourth—he is the type of the penny rush-lights who are illuminating the financial world—thinks, if the bankers get together and talk it over, matters will at once go on as smoothly as before; and a fifth is for removing all legal restrictions to universal banking by whomsoever may please to engage therein. By and by, out of this mass of confusion and contradictions, will come a tolerable degree of order and harmony, and then the country will see more clearly what is the best thing to be done. One or two things are already clear. This monetary distress is more than skin deep. It reaches to the marrow bones of every calling and pursuit; and it is a disease that only a long period of careful diet and abstinence from exciting pleasures will cure. The other is, that the days of long credits and unrestricted bank issues are drawing to a close.

Douglas' Presidential Prospects.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

The fortunes of Senator Douglas seem just now to be waning. His prestige is gone. His doctrine of the policy of Congress toward the Territories is repudiated by the leaders of the party South. The fate of Kansas will turn the fire-eaters against him. The South will demand the next President, as Pierce and Buchanan are nominally Northern men, and Howell Cobb and Henry A. Wise have thus the inside track of the Illinois Senator. And if Kansas comes into the Union a Free State, the probability is that Robert J. Walker will be shrewd enough to place himself very prominently before the free-soilish Democracy of the North. We need not talk about the Northern Democracy, however, in connection with the next national Democratic Convention. That body is to meet in Charleston, S. C., and the ultra pro-slavery influence will be paramount in its deliberations, and some patriot representing that influence [illegible]

Bogus Hydrometers—Notice.—The subscriber, in justice to the public, as well as to himself, publishes the following result of an examination of an Imported Silver Hydrometer, made in close imitation of his Hydrometers, and numbering 303, but no name:

"In Spirit, 91 over proof it showed 4½ per cent. too strong, and the error increased, till at proof it showed eleven per cent. too strong by the Standard Hydrometer."

In returning thanks to the Western Distillers, Brewers and Spirit Dealers, he would observe, that as regards the mechanical finish of his instruments, they will bear favorable comparison with those having the names of "Adams & Tagliabue" upon them, which were put together in the workshop of G. Tagliabue, J. Adams undertaking only the general superintendence and doing the most essential part, namely, the graduating and adjusting, at his own residence, (see the certificates of Drs. Chilton and Cogswell, and Crane, Distillers, N. Y.; also the cards of A. & T.) J. A., however, freely acknowledges that his chief attention is still directed to the accuracy of his instruments: for it appears to him, that when the discovery has been made that eleven per cent. is being lost by the use of a bogus affair like No. 303 without a name, it would be but small consolation to reflect that it was done by a very pretty and well finished instrument.

Messrs. J. H. Reed & Co., 144 & 146 Lake street, Chicago, continue to be supplied with his Hydrometers and Saccharometers, and he pledges himself that the same care and skill which gained for the instrument of his original and exclusive make their character for accuracy, shall be continued to all which bear his name.

JAMES ADAMS,

40 Hudson street, N. Y., near R. R. Depot.

N. B.—J. A. never made an instrument for sale on which he did not put either his name in full or "J. A.;" but since he discovered that bogus imitations were in the market, every instrument of his make has "James Adams" stamped upon the side of the stem, in addition to "J. A." upon the weight, as heretofore. The quality of the silver (U. S. coin) is also guaranteed. Repairing and re-adjusting promptly attended to. oc21-1m:d64

We wish to say to every person who reads this, that there is an article known as Dr. Sanford's Invigorator, or Liver Remedy, which can be relied on as certain to cure liver complaint in any of its forms, such as Jaundice, Dyspepsia, and numerous other complaints, described in another column, besides which, it is one of the greatest preparations or cures for consumption, taken in early stages, that is now known.

We take it for granted, as experiment has proven, that diseases of the lungs are not generally the first cause of consumption, but a debilitated system, caused by the improper action of the liver, [illegible] (See advertisement.) oc1:1m

Cholera being the disease above all others most dreaded, it will be well for all to bear in mind that, as a preventive, Dr. J. Hostetter's celebrated Stomach Bitters stand at the head, and therefore all should keep a supply at hand during the warm weather. Its effect upon the stomach when disorganized by diet, and its vivifying influence upon the system, is truly astonishing, and cannot be described, but [illegible] when used as per direction on the bottle. Further comment upon them would be superfluous, as they are known far and wide, and for sale by dealers generally all over the United States. oc18-d2w

To Consumptives, Asthmatics, Dyspeptics and Other Invalids.—Doctors Fitch and Sykes may be consulted daily, either personally or by letter, at 104 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill., for Diseases of the Throat and Lungs; also, for Dyspepsia, Female Diseases, and all other affections predisposing to Consumption.

A personal examination always greatly preferred, but, where this is impracticable, the answers to our published list of questions should be fully and carefully given.

FRIDAY MORNING..........OCTOBER 30.

Hard Times.

The Providence Transcript states that all the factories owned and run by Messrs. A. & W. Sprague stopped Friday night, thus throwing about 3,000 persons out of employment. The following is a statement of matters in the Blackstone Valley:

"The woolen mill of Edward S. Hall, in Millville, is running full time, and has been through the pressure. Hall & Scott, Millville, are intending to stop soon on account of an early removal to the new mills in Oxford. The woolen mills of Bradford & Taft, in Waterford are running full time, but at reduced wages.—There is a prospect that all the mills in Burrillville will be compelled to suspend operations. In Woodstock the wages of operatives have been every where reduced. The cotton mills are all running on short time, and the Globe, which has till this time been kept in full operation, will suspend operations wholly for the present."

The Providence Tribune of the 26th inst. says:

"We hear of numerous mills and mechanical establishments that have been running on short time, but which have now stopped entirely, throwing out of employment a great many people. No one is willing to enter into new engagements, or to trust his property to the chances of commercial credit; and with the prospect of a still greater decline in the raw material, nobody wishes to pile up goods."

The Armory at Windsor, Vt., has again been started, and some 50 hands have commenced work. The event was honored by the citizens of Windsor by firing a salute.

The Taunton (Mass.) Gazette says:

"A novel sight might have been seen on the green yesterday afternoon, on account of the dullness of the times and the extreme paucity of trade. Our merchants and shop keepers, with their clerks to the number of one hundred, assembled for a game of foot-ball. The match was very exciting and was played by the north side of Main street against the south side, the result of the game was the defeat of the south-siders in three out of the four matches played. The match was very spirited, and was witnessed by a large crowd of interested spectators."

The Grand Rapids (Mich.) Eagle says:

"Hundreds of men now throng our streets who have been thrown out of employment by the discontinuance of work upon the unfinished portion of the Detroit and Milwaukee Railway. The want of funds is the cause of this sudden halt in the progress of the road, and its consequences must be seriously felt by those who are thus deprived of their only means of support. The President and Directors feel quite confident that they will have money to pay up arrearages, and to complete the work about the 1st of next month. It is to be hoped that they will not be disappointed."

The water has subsided in the Genesee to a stage that admits of milling operations on the upper raceway. Nearly all the mills are now in full operation, with abundance of water and sufficient stocks of wheat.

During the remainder of the fall, previous to the close of navigation, they will turn out a large quantity of breadstuffs; and this reaching tide-water and a market will furnish not only food for the people, but give life to business by affording exchange with the east.—Rochester Democrat.

Stopping the Saw Mills.—In view of the general depression and the stocks of lumber on hand along the lake, several of the saw mills in Michigan which had been running on short time are stopping work altogether. The Grand Rapids Enquirer says:

"Many of the lumbermen at Muskegon have been compelled to stop operations for the present. This course is also in contemplation at Grand Haven and other places."

A movement in the same direction is made in Canada.

Decrease of Freights and Travel on Railroads.—On the Camden and Amboy Railroad through freights to the South and West, of dry goods and merchandise, had fallen off during October, as compared with the three weeks of the same month last year, about 30 per cent, as near as they can judge in anticipation of the monthly accounts. The freights inward, for the first eighteen days of October, have fallen off about 15 per cent. In the passenger business, the receipts for October will be about equal to last year. The month of September, 1856, produced more, by about a thousand dollars, than the same month of 1857.

The closing of the Delaware and Raritan Canal in winter throws a large amount of freights upon the road. The aggregate receipts for September, 1857, in the different departments, amounted to an excess of $40,000 over the corresponding month last year.

On the Central Railroad, New Jersey, there has been a large decrease in the amount of freight since the hard times, the receipts having fallen off nearly two-thirds. There is no Philadelphia passenger travel over this road.—Newark Advertiser.

Life and Adventures of Three Desperate Robbers.

[From the N. Y. Evening Post.]

Several months since, the Bank of New Brunswick was broken into and over seventy thousand dollars stolen from its vaults. The details of this audacious robbery have already been published; and after being tracked for a long time, and through many places, its perpetrators have at last been captured, and are now awaiting trial before the Court of Assizes in Nova Scotia. They are three in number, and their names are Phil Stanley, Jack Rand and Bill Smith.

These three men apparently are none of your small, vulgar rascals. They display the trophies of no less than sixteen memorable achievements, of which each of them boasts; and whether they exaggerate the importance and recklessness of these from a love of boasting we will not stop to inquire.

The leader of this trio is Phil Stanley, alias Phil Sandford, who prides himself upon being one of the most artful villains in Christendom. He was born in England, and is over thirty-two years old. His manner is affable and quiet; yet he is a very devil in hardihood, and gifted with almost unparalleled finesse. He has the eye of a lynx, the subtlety of a cat, the quick decision of a consummate general, and a force of execution which sets all obstacles at defiance.

He first became known on this continent in the city of Buffalo, where in a single night he committed three burglaries. He was arrested for the crime, tried, convicted and sentenced to nine years and nine months imprisonment. Unfortunately, his sentence was soon after commuted, and, true to his instincts, he hastened to deserve another.

This fellow is aristocratic in his trade. He entertains a hearty contempt for small rascalities, and aspires to great projects and achievements. Scarcely had he got out of prison, when he planned a grand enterprise against the Milton Bank, of Dorchester; and one fine morning that institution missed $32,000. Having succeeded in this great project, he carried on his operations in Albany, Rochester, Buffalo and Springfield; sometimes alone, sometimes with his associates. But in Buffalo the bird was caged the second time; the Grand Jury found a true bill of indictment, and he was sentenced to the Auburn State Prison for another period of nine years and nine months.

In the meantime Phil had married the widow of a Jew, who kept an obscure hotel in the city of Albany. When he found himself a second time under the restraint of iron bars and heavy locks, he set his genius to work to devise the means of recovering his liberty. He drew up a petition to the Governor of the State for his pardon, signed by all the employees of the prison, and having counterfeited the signature of the Judge, sent it on to Gov. Seymour. His excellency was ensnared by the trick; he promptly sent on an order for his release, and in a few days Phil found himself outside the prison walls. The fraud was afterward discovered, and officers were dispatched to find the criminal, and after a long and fruitless search, they listened to the proposals of his wife, who agreed to discover his whereabouts upon certain conditions. The bargain being consummated, Phil got off with two years and six months confinement. This inadequate punishment only whetted his instincts, and gave him new faith in his lucky star; and he soon after robbed the Windham County Bank of $22,000. He next turned his thoughts upon Canada, and went to Montreal, where he committed many robberies with impunity—among others one of $10,000 from the office of the Grand Trunk Railroad. A police officer, getting a clue to his proceedings, tracked him to Buffalo, where he succeeded in capturing him. He was locked up two or three months, and then let off for want of sufficient evidence.

After getting rid of this annoyance thus fortunately, he went to New York, where his wife was then living. Scarcely had he stepped out of the cars when this adorable creature demanded a fur mantilla. Could he refuse such a request to a loving angel who had turned aside the poisoned arrows of justice, aimed at his devoted head? The thing was not to be thought of, though Phil had not the funds, he assured [illegible] was not the man to spoil his dignity by pilfering so petty a thing. To relieve himself of the embarrassment, he signalized the night of his visit to the Metropolis by breaking into a store and stealing a quantity of rich furs, which he thought would not fail of satisfying the most extravagant wishes of his beloved. [illegible] said Phil; "they must be made up." They were accordingly sent to a furrier, where, as luck would have it, they were soon after recognized by the lawful owner, and Phil was arrested when he called for the article.

"So it has often happened," philosophically remarked poor Phil, on his way to the Tombs; "these cursed baubles of women have often ruined great men." But he did not content himself merely with giving utterance to the maxims of wisdom; but while on his way to that venerable penal institution, he slipped from the officers, outstripped them in the race, escaped from the city, fled to Michigan, robbed the State Bank of $11,000, went to Connecticut, plundered several jewellery stores in that State, robbed an Indiana exchange agent of a considerable sum, plundered several of the principal shops, and joined Jack Rand and Bell Smith. The trio next attempted to rob an oil company. By means of false keys the rascals got into the company's safe, but to their chagrin found the coffers empty. For two or three nights they continued the experiment but still found no money. Enraged with his ill-success, Phil resolved not to have all this trouble for nothing. Having carefully examined the company's books and acquainted himself with their method of doing business, he forged names and personating one of their employees, got it discounted and left the city. When the note became due, the unfortunate employee whose name they had assumed, was tried for forgery, and sentenced to Sing Sing for five years.

Thence the confederates went to Quebec. Their exploits in that city having alarmed the people and waked up the vigilance of the officers, they left for Nova Scotia.

A few weeks after their arrival there, the Bank robbery of $75,000 was committed. In this stupendous affair, Phil employed all his devilish genius. His manner of proceeding is sometimes slow, but always sure. With a bit of wax he took an impression of the outside door-lock, and from this model they constructed a key. Another night the robbers entered the building, and took impressions of the drawers and vaults, and made other keys as before, and were now sure of success. It is asserted that Phil has often devoted six months' study to the plan of an enterprise, and when it promised largely, has not scrupled in spending two thousand dollars in maturing it. He has great power of strategy and invention. At Auburn he made a key for securing the grates, and gave it to the jailor, who sold the secret to a house in New York. They got it patented, and have realized large profits from its sale.

Ordinarily, Phil managed an affair and let his confederates execute it. But in Nova Scotia he departed from the prudent custom; and to this negligence he owes his detection.

Jack Rand, one of his accomplices, was born in New Hampshire, where he exercised the trade of a locksmith. He began his career of crime with stealing $500, for which he suffered two years' imprisonment.

After the expiration of his term, he figured in the robbery of the Portsmouth Bank, and received $70,000 as his share of the spoils. He sent a part of it to his father, who, being found with some of it in his possession, was arrested for the crime. Jack, not altogether forgetful of the obligations of a son, confessed himself the guilty party to the police. He was imprisoned, and his father set at liberty; but the rascal made his escape in about four months. At Concord he was arrested for larceny. He got out again; and in New Jersey this modern Jack Sheppard committed a heavy wharf robbery. They caught and imprisoned him, and for the third time he broke jail. He was, however, recaptured in Philadelphia, and sent back to New Jersey, where he was acquitted in some unexplained manner.

Disgusted with the States, he went to Canada with Stanley, and the two travelled up and down the St. Lawrence. Steamboats, expresses, &c., were the theatre of their operations. One time they attempted to steal a box containing $50,000 in gold dust, but failed. Phil was arrested for the attempt, but was discharged for want of competent evidence.

The last of this diabolical trio is Bill Smith, whom we may regard as the servant, or rather slave of the other two. He does the most dangerous and servile work, and receives the least pay.

American Genius Triumphant!

ATWATERS $15 SEWING MACHINE

PATENTED MAY 3RD, 1857.

30,000 Machines Ready for Market.

THIS MACHINE IS THE PRODUCTION of H. Atwater, Esq., well known to the scientific world, who, after over three years' tedious study and experiment, has produced this most invaluable, ingenious and yet simple Machine.

This Machine has been pronounced by scientific and skillful mechanics to be the most durable, practical and complete Machine ever invented, or that can be during the present century. It is in fact the most reliable Machine ever offered to the public, as will readily be seen upon examination. Its chief excellence consists in its astonishing simplicity.

The principal is entirely new and original, and wholly unlike any other Machine in the world. Its durability exceeds the best $100 Machine, because it is entirely divested of anything like complicated machinery, so common to all machines now known to the public. It has neither looper, hook, shuttle, spring or cam, to get out of order, and is most effective in its operation, as any one can readily see upon a slight examination. It is emphatically the Machine for the people. It has but to be seen to be admired, and used to be appreciated.

Anybody can use it, and everybody will have it.

This Machine stands upon its own merits, and is its own best reference. We court the most rigid investigation and severest scrutiny of the skeptical, feeling assured that it will result in a perfect confirmation of the facts above stated.

The Patent is well secured in all points, and this being wholly unlike any other Machine, is entirely free from the slightest infringement.

The subscribers have the sole and exclusive agency of the United States and Territories for this most valuable monopoly, and now offer a portion of the Territory for sale, either by States or Counties, upon an equitable and fair basis.

The public are respectfully invited to call and examine the Machine for themselves at our rooms in the NOTICE.—DR. C. S. EGAN IS NOW prepared to treat all Scrofulous, Cachectic and broken down conditions of the system, as he uses in his practice a popular preparation of Sarsaparilla, with which his brother, Dr. Wm. B. Egan, was so successful in directly and State a few years since. This medicine has cured numbers of cases in Europe which resisted every other means, and in this country it effected cures where the American preparations had entirely failed. There are persons now residing in this city who owe to this safe and powerful Alterative, renovated and vigorous constitutions. Office 108 Randolph street, opposite the Matteson House. Residence S. The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age, is

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

THEY DON'T "HELP" COMPLAINTS, but they cure them.

One box has cured Dyspepsia.

Three boxes have cured the worst case of Scrofula.

Two boxes have cured Erysipelas.

One box always cures the Jaundice.

Three boxes are sure to cleanse the system from Boils—often less than one does it.

Two boxes have completely cured the worst of ulcers on the legs.

Small doses seldom fail to cure the Piles.

One dose cures the head-ache arising from a foul stomach.

Strong doses often repeated expel every worm from the body.

They should be given to children, who are always more or less afflicted with this scourge.

As a gentle Physic they have no equal.

One box cures derangement of the Liver.

Half a box cures a Cold.

They purify the blood, and thus strike at the foundation of every disease.

As a Dinner Pill there is not their equal in the world.

They are purely vegetable, and can do no harm, but do accomplish an unknown amount of good.
